

Presentation plan: Present Checkology® to your school (~45 min.)

Thank you for spreading the word about news literacy and Checkology! To support you, we have compiled resources and tips that you can use during your presentation. Feel free to make it your own!

1. Opener: Use one or more of the following prompts to get your colleagues reflecting, writing and talking.
  - What sources of information do students in our community think are credible?
  - How does the spread of misinformation affect your ability to teach students?
  - What are some common opinions that students in our community hold about news organizations?
  - What is it like teaching current events? What might make it easier to hold these conversations?
2. Present Checkology to your school: Looking for a slide deck to use during your presentation? Check out the slide deck in the "Present to your school" Google Drive as a starting point. It first dives into the fundamentals of news literacy education. Then, the presentation covers the basics of Checkology and how to use it with students.

Note: Slide 17 contains links to two short lesson demo videos to use if audio and internet are available. Each demo showcases a lesson instruction video and one or more assessment examples, with a voiceover by NLP staff.

Also note: In the Notes section underneath each slide, there are notes to reference during your presentation.

3. Handout: Print or share the handout in this Google Drive for educators to fill out during or after your presentation. At the bottom of the handout, there is a "Quick Lesson Info" sheet to help identify which lessons they might use in class and to think about how they might implement the lessons. The handout also provides space for participants to jot down questions they have for you or for NLP.

To submit questions to NLP, you may either copy/paste the question text or take photos of their handouts. Then, send the questions to checkologyhelp@newslit.org. You may also have your colleagues or audience contact us directly in the Checkology Help Center. This might encourage your audience to explore the Help Center for more resources.
